A P P L Y	Poet and playwright Oscar Wilde once said, “I can resist anything, but temptation.” We all probably know someone who just can’t seem to make the right choices. Sometimes that person might even be us. The temptations Jesus faced (and ultimately resisted) in this Sunday’s Gospel give us reason to hope, that while temptations will always be a part of human existence, instead of simply giving in to them, we might see them as points in our life where first we can turn a little more towards God. Now with a different view, there we can find the help we need to make the choices we should make, instead of those we should not. Think back to a time when you may have been tempted, faced a difficult decision and you found the help you needed in your faith?
P R A Y E R	Dear Jesus-Help us to remember all that you taught us. When we are tempted by the things of this world, help us to know you, too experienced difficult choices and challenges. We can trust that you are always there guiding us each day. In your name we pray. Amen.
